Military Programs

One Corps serving The Army and the Nation

The Military Programs Directorate mission is to provide premier engineering, construction and environmental management products and services for the U. S. Army, the U. S. Air Force, Department of Defense Agencies, other United States Government Agencies and foreign Countries.

Our mission is executed around the world through eight Engineer Divisions (General Officer commands) and 41 subordinate Engineer Districts (Colonel and Lt Colonel commands). Additionally, we have two Engineer Centers: one at Huntsville, AL which is executing our worldwide Ballistic Missile Defense and Chemical Demilitarization Programs and one at Winchester, VA which executes the bulk of our missions in the Middle East and Africa. Finally, we have seven Laboratories, which provide military-related research to include digital topographic support.

Our workforce of 10,200 personnel is spread across the country and located in over 80 foreign countries, providing reimbursable engineering expertise throughout the world. The FY02 Military Programs accounts we are executing this year total over $7.6 Billion.

We are the world's premier public engineering organization responding to our nation's needs in peace and war for the past 236 years and will continue this tradition into the 21st century.

The Military Programs Directorate has four major Divisions—Programs Management, Environmental, Installation and Support, and Interagency and International Services (IIS).

- Programs Management Division provides program management for the Military Construction (MILCON) and IIS programs
- The Environmental Division provides committed and professional management and execution of the Environmental Program for Prevention, Conservation, Compliance, and Restoration
- International and Interagency Services Division provides reimbursable technical assistance to other Federal agencies, state and local governments, Indian nations, private U.S. firms, international organizations and foreign governments. In executing the program, the Corps seeks to provide management support that complements the expertise of other agencies and helps protect the Federal interest.
- The Installation Support Division provides Headquarters USACE staff support, and direct real property facilities management and installation support activities for the Directorate of Military Programs, and performs related services for the Army, and the Assistant Chief of Staff for Installation Management.
